Yonkers, NY – The biggest stage to watch the biggest game of the year is Empire City Casino with New York Giants Legends Justin Tuck and Stephen Baker. Both will be stopping by the premier entertainment destination in the Northeast to host a viewing party on Sunday when the Atlanta Falcons take on the New England Patriots for all the marbles. Tuck and Baker are filling in for David Tyree who had a last-minute conflict.

The free festivities begin in the casino's Entertainment Lounge at 5:30 PM on game day, where Tuck and Baker will mingle with fans, sign mini footballs which will be offered to the first 100 guests, and watch the game with fans until 7:30 PM. Empire City Casino is bringing in a 10 foot by 15 foot jumbo screen to bring football fans as close to the action as possible with seating on a first-come, first-serve basis along with $5 beers and hot dogs.

Most fans know Tuck for his defensive tenacity that helped the Giants win two championships in 2008 and 2012. Baker caught a touchdown pass in the Giants big game win back in 1991 when the Giants beat the Buffalo Bills 20-19 for their second championship. During the viewing party, Tuck and Baker will also provide some insight on what it was like playing in the big game.

"We encourage fans from all over the tri-state area to come watch the Falcons versus the Patriots and hang out with two legends who have played in and won the big game," said Taryn Duffy, director of public affairs for Empire City Casino.

Additional viewing and food options are available at Empire City with Dan Rooney's Sports Pub offering a $35 buffet menu along with $5 bud and bud light drafts, over 40 high definition televisions.
